ATTENDANCE, PREPARATION AND PARTICIPATION:

Successful learning and understanding require class attendance and active participation in classroom discussions. Since both classroom lectures and course assignments will be tested, good attendance will likely enhance your test scores. In addition, should any special in-class assignments or unannounced quizzes be given, you will need to be in attendance to benefit from those assignments. Attendance will be taken regularly and routinely throughout the semester. The excused absence will only allow the student to make up assignments that were missed.

ASSESSMENT:

There will be two examinations of equal weight; each consisting of 30% of the grade. Exams may vary in style; they may be multiple choice and short answer, take-home and/or essay. Exams will cover material and topics that are presented and discussed in class and on homework assignments. Additionally, there will be several writing assignments, quizzes, and homework assignments and they will be averaged out for another 10% of the grade.

Each student will complete a criminal justice research project for 30% of the course grade. The research project will be on an assigned criminal justice related topic. Each student will be required to present their research in class. There will be a 20% deduction for missing your presentation date.

Exam # 1	30%	90-100 = A
Exam # 2	30%	80-89 = B
Research Project	30%	70-79 = C
Writing Assignments, Homework, Quizzes	10%	60-69 = D
		59 and Below = F

CLASSROOM DECORUM:

Students will be expected to display appropriate classroom behavior at all times. Throughout the semester you will be engaging in intellectual discussion with your classmates to enhance the learning environment. In doing so you will be expected to maintain appropriate behavior and avoid attacking your classmates in any malicious manner. Inappropriate language is prohibited in the classroom. If you are heard using inappropriate language, as deemed by the professor, you will be deducted on your final average.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY:

The Department of Criminal Justice expects students to conduct their academic work with integrity and honesty. Acts of academic misconduct will not be tolerated and can result in the failure of a course and dismissal from the University. Academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, cheating on a test, plagiarism, counterfeit work, falsification of academic record, unauthorized reuse of work, theft, and collusion.
