

University of the Incarnate Word® Bachelor of Arts in Psychology - Addiction Prevention

College of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) in Psychology in the College of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences (CHASS) at the University of the Incarnate Word prepares students for advanced training and future careers as psychologists and other behavioral scientists. The B.A. in Psychology is a 120-hour degree program that is consistent with national standards and includes a service-learning component. Through the completion of this program and participation in additional opportunities afforded to Psychology students at UIW, graduates will have a variety of options for careers or postgraduate pursuits. The current curriculum reflects up-to-date training and content standards.

Psychology is the scientific study of behavior and mental processes in humans and nonhuman animals. Students majoring in psychology learn how thought, emotion and other behaviors are influenced by perception, motivation, heredity, language, learning, culture and environment. Psychology majors use scientific methods of inquiry to address research questions, provide services aiming to understand bio-psycho-social influences on behavior and promote social justice. Psychology majors develop competence in an area of interest through advanced elective courses in the major, internship and conducting research.

In addition to core courses in psychology, students select from: 1) General Psychology with the addition of a minor, major or interdisciplinary concentration in neuroscience; or 2) Addiction Prevention. Students can also consult with their faculty advisor to design a degree emphasis on child or human development, social psychology or animal behavior and cognition.

QUICK FACTS

- UIW Psychology supports three student organizations: Psi Chi, the international honor society; Psychological Society, the service organization; and NAMI on Campus, an organization that does peer outreach and education about mental illness.
- UIW Psychology has internship relationships with over 40 different community partners. This offers opportunities to learn about anything from animal care and equitherapy (horse-assisted therapy) to drug abuse treatment and psychology's role in policy-making.
- UIW Psychology offers bi-annual study-abroad experiences to Europe or Mexico with psychology faculty members during the summer.
- Many Psychology courses include service learning for students to develop new skills and apply theory as they provide service to those in need and accrue community service hours toward the requirement for graduation.
- Psychology majors conducting research can earn credit hours toward the degree and can obtain department funding to present their research at academic conferences.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS
